FINANCIAL CRISES

And Periods of Industrial and Commercial Depression

With Diagrams, Bibliography, and Index

By THEODORE E. BURTON

12mo. Cloth, $1.40 net; postage, 12 cents additional

This valuable work combines theory, criticism, and statistical fact. In the theoretical part the author exposes some fallacies as to financial crises and panics, and offers a positive theory which is reasonable and tenable. His analysis of partial gluts and of misdirected production as a chief element in producing crises and depressions is an important feature. Attention is called to the greater prominence in recent years of periods of depression and also periods of prosperity, and the decreased prominence of sharp and severe crises or panics. The author's connection with large business interests, his long experience as a lawyer, and his service in Congress, where he has been conspicuously identified with important committees, have afforded a wide and valuable equipment. For bankers and others in financial and business life, and for general readers of financial books and advanced students, Mr. Burton's work will have especial value.

A. C. ARMSTRONG & SON'S NEW BOOKS

DR. W. ROBERTSON NICOLL'S NEW BOOK

The Church's One Foundation

Christ and Recent Criticism

By Rev. W. ROBERTSON NICOLL, M.A., LL.D. Editor of "The Expositor's Bible." One vol., crown octavo, cloth, $1.25.

CONTENTS.—I. Christ and the Newer Criticism. II. The Modes of Access to Christ. III. The Historical Christ: Preliminary Assumptions. IV. The Historical Christ: Ecce Homo; Ecce Deus. V. The Sinlessness of Jesus. VI. The Resurrection of our Lord from the Dead. VII. Christ's Triumphant Captives. VIII. The Argument from the Aureole. IX. The Christ of Dream. X. "Keep."

"Dr. Nicoll has a keen eye and he occupies a central position . . . but no man is more alive to the seriousness of the issues now raised by writers within the Christian Church and beyond its pale. We need not say that the book is well written, that the issues are stated with luminous precision, and that the note of warning is sounded very clearly."

2d Edition of Apostolic Optimism

And Other Sermons. By Rev. J. H. JOWETT, M.A. Crown octavo, cloth, $1.75.

"His handling of Scripture is masterly. Nothing can be happier than his comparison and juxtaposition of passages apparently remote from each other, but which placed together shed a combined ray of beautiful new light."—CHRISTIAN WORLD.

"One of the noblest contributions to homiletic literature we have seen in many a day."—INTERIOR.

The Progress of Dogma

Being the Elliot Lectures Delivered at the Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, Penn. By JAMESS ORR, D.D. Author of "Neglected Factors in the Study of the Early Progress of Christianity," etc. One vol., crown octavo, cloth, $1.75.

A complete and comprehensive treatise on Christian Doctrine.

IMPORTANT NEW THEOLOGICAL SERIES

Christian Study Manuals

The Early Church

Its History and Literature. By Prof. JAMES ORR, D.D.

Ruling Ideas of Our Lord

By Rev. C. F. D'ARCY, D.D., Dean of Belfast.

Protestant Principles

By Rev. J. MONRO GIBSON, D.D.

Religions of Bible Lands

By Rev. Prof. D. G. MARGOLIOUTH, D.D.

16mo volumes, cloth; each 60 cents.

This series is intended to provide manuals adapted for the higher religious instruction of Bible students generally, in Church, Seminary and College, Christian Endeavor Societies, etc., and will also prove invaluable to all students of Christian truth and history.

Dr. MARCUS DODS writes in British Weekly: "Dr. Orr has a specialist's knowledge of the early Christian centuries," and the Christian Observer says of Dr. Orr's volume, "Rarely have we seen so many facts condensed into so small a compass. Those who do not care to obtain the more expensive church history will find abundant material for thought in this little book."

Of D'Arcy's "Ruling Ideas" the N. Y. Churchman says: "There is not a page of the book that could be spared," and "Protestant Principles" the Balt. Methodist calls "Admirable, clear and impartial. It is a manual we would like to see in the hands of every Protestant."

Edited by Prof. George Adam Smith, D.D.

New Topographical, Physical and Biblical Map of Palestine

Compiled from the latest Surveys and Researches, including the work of the English and German Palestine Exploration Funds, showing all identified Biblical Sites, together with the Modern Place-Names. Prepared under the direction of J. G. BARTHOLOMEW, F.R.S.E., and edited by GEORGE ADAM SMITH, D.D., author of "The Historical Geography of Palestine." Map, mounted on linen, and in cloth case, with COMPLETE INDEX of 3180 names. Each place is indexed under its modern as well as ancient name. $3.50 net.

Invaluable for reference with George Adam Smith's "Historical Geography of Palestine."

"We have no hesitation in pronouncing this the most complete map of Palestine in existence."—Methodist Times.

"A work of great beauty and value, and scholars will give it an enthusiastic welcome."—Interior.

4th Thousand of George Adam Smith's

Modern Criticism and the Preaching of the Old Testament

Being the Yale Lectures on Preaching. By GEORGE ADAM SMITH, D.D., Professor of Hebrew and Old Testament Exegesis, Free Church College, Glasgow. One volume, crown octavo, cloth, $1.50.

The Outlook: "No clergyman or theological student interested in modern criticism can afford to leave this book unread. It is an acute and suggestive appreciation of the effects of the modern critical movement upon the Old Testament in its dual character as history and as the record of a divine revelation."

Anticipations

By H. G. WELLS

Author of "The Invisible Man," "The War of the Worlds," etc.

This is Mr. Wells' first serious study, apart from fiction, based on his wide experience in scientific research. In the light of present scientific knowledge he forecasts world-life—society, morals, business conditions, trade, etc. —one hundred years hence. A brilliant book, that in spite of possible disagreement will compel thought.

NOTES IN SEASON.

HARPER & BROTHERS will publish on the 18th inst. H. G. Wells's new book, "Anticipations," certain chapters of which were published in the North American Review last year; also, "The Siege of Lady Resolute," a new story by Harris Dickson, author of "The Black Wolf's Breed."

THE CENTURY COMPANY will publish on the 25th inst. "Naughty Nan," by John Luther Long, the first novel by the author of the very successful story and play "Madam Butterfly;" also, "Policeman Flynn," by Elliott Flower, who is familiar to readers of The Century. They will publish early in March "The Little Brother," by Josiah Flynt, the first novel of the author of "Tramping with Tramps," etc.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have just ready "Sanitary Engineering," by Francis Wood, a volume of special interest to municipal engineers and boards of health, with a number of illustrations; the second volume of "Central and South America," in Stanford's Compendium of Geography, by A. H. Keene, edited by Sir Clements R. Marcum, president of the Royal Geographical Society, supplied with illustrations and maps; also, a second and revised edition of "Water and Its Purification," a widely read work by Samuel Rideal, containing much additional matter dealing with water epidemics and sanitary filtration.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish on the 26th inst. Miss Mary Johnston's new story, "Audrey." The first 1000 copies of the first edition have been specially printed with paper label and uncut edges. The author's "To Have and to Hold" is now in its 300th thousand, and her "Prisoners of Hope" is also still in demand. They have in preparation a new edition, in one volume, of Bayard Taylor's poems, prepared by Mrs. Taylor. The book will be printed from new plates, and will contain all of Taylor's poems, except the dramatic pieces. It will be uniform with the volumes of Longfellow, Whittier and others of this series, and will contain a portrait and other illustrations. There will also be a library edition, embellished with a photogravure portrait of Mrs. Taylor and other additional illustrations, including an autograph facsimile of the well-known "Bedouin Love Song."

D. APPLETON & Co. have just ready a work on "Financial Crises and Periods of Industrial and Commercial Depression," by Theodore E. Burton, whose connection with large business interests, his long experience as a lawyer and his service in Congress, where he has been conspicuously identified with important committees, have fitted him to write on the subject with authority. They also announce "A Sailor's Log: recollections of forty years of naval life," by Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, U. S. N. They will publish shortly "Kate Bonnet," the romance of a pirate's daughter, by Frank R. Stockton, for which they have gotten up a very striking poster; "Scarlet and Hyssop," a story of London society, not unlike "Dodo," by E. F. Benson; "The Pageant and Ceremony of the Coronation of their Majesties King Edward VII. and Queen Alexandra in Westminster Abbey," by Charles Eyre Pascoe; "Practical Forestry," by Professor John Gifford; "The Earth's Beginning," by Sir Robert Stawell Ball; "Love in its Tenderness," idyllic pictures of Scottish life, by J. R. Aitken; "Personal Memoirs of Philip Henry Sheridan," by Brig.-Gen. Michael V. Sheridan; a new and revised edition of Edgar S. Maclay's "History of the United States Navy;" "Harold's Discussions," by J. W. Troeger, the fifth and last volume of the popular "Harold" series in the Nature Study Readers; "The Adventures of Marco Polo," by Edward Atherton, a new volume in the series of Home Reading Books; also "History of Ancient Greek Literature," by Harold N. Fowler, and "A Laboratory and Field Manual of Botany," by Otis W. Caldwell, two new volumes in Appleton's Twentieth Century Text-Books. Dr. A. Conan Doyle is contemplating a collected edition of his works which in this country will bear the imprint of D. Appleton & Co.

Wistons was an estate in a remote corner of England. Here father and son had farmed for several centuries. The story has entirely to do with the owner or owners of Wistons—Robert Woolvenhurst, his son and grandchildren. Their love affairs and marriages are the chief events in a narrative which rarely strays from the limits of middle-class country life. The three parts are devoted to "Betty," "Robin" and "Esther and Rhoda."

Gives a complete description, with full-page illustrations, of our native New England land trees. In order to facilitate comparison of one tree with another, the text is arranged in paragraphs, with such headings as Habit and Inflorescence. The illustrations cover every period of growth from bud to fruit, and are of themselves sufficient in most cases for the identification of the species. Although the work was written specially for New England conditions, it is applicable to a much larger area north and south.

Mrs. Gallup's claim is the discovery of the existence of the bi-literal cipher of Francis Bacon, and that it runs through a considerable number of the original editions of the books of the Elizabethan era. The present volume is the result of nearly three years spent by Mrs. Gallup in examining and translating from these old books the hidden stories which they contain. These stories relate to much that was mysterious in Bacon's life, such as his claim to being the son of Queen Elizabeth, etc. Mrs. Gallup explains the cipher, how she found it, etc., and brings to bear what she considers "overwhelming and irresistible proof" that Bacon was the author of the plays and poems attributed to Shakespeare, to many lines known as Spenser's and Burton's.

Corinne Meredith is a pretty American girl of eighteen, living with her young step-mother and half-sister at a French seaport town. The step-mother dies of consumption, but before dying extracts a vow from Corinne to be a mother to her young sister, and to sacrifice everything in life for her. The girl's father is reported lost at sea on his way to France, and his business a failure. Left penniless and friendless in a strange land, they have sad experiences, through which their religious training bravely supports them. For Catholic readers.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

FEBRUARY 15, 1902.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, should reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE DISPLAY OF BOOKS.

IN a recent issue of Printer's Ink a correspondent relates an experience that should startle some booksellers into thinking. This correspondent in passing a large retail bookstore in one of our large cities casually noticed a window card that read something like this: "Any book in this row fifty cents." While it didn't seem to him that any of the books displayed in the window were special bargains at this price, so far as he could judge from the cheap and decidedly unattractive paper covers with which the cloth bindings were protected, he happened to see a title that he wished to add to his library, and stepped inside to examine the book. On removing the sombre-hued and not over-clean paper cover, he saw a really handsome book, nicely bound in red cloth and very prettily ornamented in gold. It was a book that might easily sell in the regular way at from a dollar upwards, and was certainly a decided bargain at fifty cents. And thereby hangs the tale.

We venture to say that over half of the window display made by booksellers throughout the country is ineffective, partly because a good deal of it is done in a half-hearted manner through fear that some of the stock might become shop worn, and partly because the person having charge of the matter crowds his window space in such a fashion as to display nothing distinctly. In the case cited above, the important thing for the window-dresser to keep in mind was to display his "bait"—the stock he was most desirous to bring to the attention of the passer-by—in such a fashion that no passer-by could fail to notice it. But he missed his object in perhaps every case but the one noted, by enveloping his prizes in soiled and unattractive wrappers, forgetting the fact that in many cases the cover and make-up of a book often tempt buyers, who want to give away an attractive looking book, more than its literary merit.

In displaying books in the shop window it is necessary to show off all the good points they may possess in the way of striking or attractive binding in every possible way, using three or four copies of the same book if necessary. To treat such a matter half-heartedly for fear of taking the freshness off the cover of one or more books by removing the wrapper is a mistake that will prove more costly in the end than the slight loss on a few shop worn copies. The right goods rightly displayed at the right time, to paraphrase an epigram, is the principle that underlies all other advertising principles. The bookseller who has not already done so must master this detail of his business if he wishes to succeed. It is a matter that is constantly growing of more importance, as all methods of exploiting business are developing and growing of more and more importance year by year. A man or a firm that doesn't know how to advertise itself might just as well not be in business.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF PRINTING.*

BY JOSEPH GANTZ.

. . . THERE are as many claimants to the honor of having invented movable types as there are reputed skulls of Paul the Apostle. But when these claims are sifted, only two are worthy of consideration, those of Lawrence Koster, a Hollander, and John Gutenberg, a German. And of these two, the claim of Koster is now denied by all but his own countrymen; so that modern writers are practically unanimous in awarding to John Gutenberg the high honor that is his due. By this invention of movable types, as you already know, modern bookmaking was made possible, and from the time of Gutenberg the real history of printing dates.

By 1477, or within twenty years from the time when the old German printer issued his two Bibles and Psalter, printing had spread so rapidly throughout Europe that establishments were in existence in over twenty different cities on the Continent.

* Extract from a paper read before The Booksellers' League, January 8, 1902.

The art was introduced into England in 1476 by William Caxton, who brought it over from the Low Countries. In 1535 the first complete Bible in England was published by Coverdale; in 1622 the first regular periodical was issued in England, and in 1702 the first daily paper, the Courant, appeared.

In our own country the pioneer printing plant was set up by Stephen Daye at Cambridge in 1639, while among the most notable of our early printers was William Bradford, who introduced the art both into Philadelphia and into our own city of New York. Nor should the well-known name of Benjamin Franklin be omitted in speaking of those who have shed lustre on the early days of printing in America.

In Europe—Germany, Italy, and France have been especially notable for their skilled handicraftsmen and artistic work. Germany had many worthy successors of Gutenberg; Italy is famed for the productions of Jenson and Manutius; while in France the Stephenses brought the printing craft to such a high degree of artistic excellence that their influence has been felt down to the present day.

Having presented this rough outline of the early spread of printing I now desire to limit my address to one or two of the more important divisions of the art; and with such intention I shall take up the growth of the printing-press.

All the presses that are now or ever have been used in the making of books and newspapers may be divided into two great classes, those operated solely by hand and those operated with the aid of power. And from the days of Gutenberg to those of Lord Stanhope, or for 350 long years, the printing of the world was done on a crude hand-press made almost wholly of wood, not unlike the wine-press at present in use in certain parts of Europe.

Lord Stanhope it was who, observing the unsatisfactory work and frequent breakdowns of this primitive affair, with the aid of an ingenious mechanic named Walker, brought about the first radical improvement. This was a hand-press built entirely of iron; and we are told that it was a very ugly-looking creation indeed.

It was a great advance over its wooden predecessor, however, and was quickly followed by a number of others. These were in turn superseded by the Columbian press, the invention of George Clymer, an American, who went to England about 1818, and to this day the Columbian has remained the most popular hand-press in England, its only rival being the Albion.

The story of the hand-press in America is soon told. The Shields, one of the early successors of Lord Stanhope's creation, was the first offered here, in New York City in 1811, and several were used on the daily papers for a while. In 1820 Peter Smith obtained a patent on a hand-press, the first of a long series of patents granted to the firm of R. Hoe & Co. Smith's press was manufactured by them for many years, but was ultimately superseded by the Washington, which is now practically the only iron hand-press used in America to-day.

That good from evil often flows is well exemplified in the beginnings of our second class of press, for it was to help satisfy the demand for news, caused by the wars of Napoleon, and the unsettled state of Europe, at the opening of the nineteenth century, that the power press had its origin.

In those days it would have taken twenty-four men twelve hours to print only 6000 copies of a newspaper; so we may well believe that publishers were eager to take up with any new invention that promised quicker work.

In this state of affairs a young German named König went to England with plans for a mechanical press; and after many experiments, aided by the ideas of an Englishman named Nicholson, he succeeded in constructing the first press operated by mechanical power. On November 29, 1814, the London Times announced that it had printed its edition for the day on machinery—the pioneer of the thousands of editions that have come after. König's press could produce 1100 impressions an hour, a mighty stride forward. The results of König's success were immediately apparent in the number of improvements that rapidly followed.

America played but little part in the early history of power-press improvement, and the one invented by Isaac Adams in 1850 is the first of any importance. The early power-presses of England were of the cylinder pattern, in which the impression was obtained by causing the sheet of paper to pass between a revolving roller and the stationary form of type. Then came the advance to the flat bed, in which the bed containing the type is pressed up against a stationary plate, or platen. It was this pattern that Mr. Adams improved so greatly as to place it far ahead of its competitors, and it remained a favorite for fifty years. About the same time Robert Hoe began making cylinder presses, and among the first was one employed on the Commercial Advertiser, of this city. Then for thirty years these two, Adams and Hoe, made about all of America's presses.

You are not to suppose that hand-presses were at once relegated to their present insignificant uses, however; strange as it may sound nowadays, they more than held their own for many years. In 1837 Harper & Brothers had thirty-seven hand-presses and but one machine press. A mule was employed to furnish power, and this mule was elevated by tackle to an upper story in the morning, and let down at night in the same way! It must have been an Army mule.

Another war, that of the Rebellion, saw the production of many new designs, prominent among them being the Campbell, the Cottrell, and the Potter. Before that war, nearly all our presses were manufactured by two firms, while since its close a variety of designs and a large number of firms have sprung up, and to-day there are something like forty firms engaged in making presses.

Of these numerous varieties, one or two deserve mention. The type-revolving press was remarkable for its great size and its short existence. In it, the type was securely fastened to a large central cylinder, and by means of smaller impression cylinders a new impression could be obtained at every foot on the large cylinder's circumference. You may have seen pictures of this machine, with its tier upon tier of pressmen all feeding at once. Some of these presses were as big as a three-story house and weighed over 60,000 pounds.

The press that made old iron of the type-revolver was the web. This latter, which is now employed exclusively in all the great modern newspaper offices, has for its principle the continuous movement in one direction of both stereotype cylinder and impression cylinder. This machine became possible only after the invention of stereotyped plates from paper moulds, and the making of paper so that it could be delivered to the press from the huge reels which resemble giant spools of white thread. The London Times, ever most enterprising in advancing improvements, was prominent in developing the web. Its workings are too complicated for explanation here. Suffice it to say that the fable of the live dog at one end and the "linked-sweetness" product at the other, is fairly eclipsed by a machine that turns out a complete sixteen-page newspaper—printed, pasted, counted and folded—at the incredible speed of 24,000 copies per hour; or, in the case of the color press, 12,000 eight-page papers per hour simultaneously in four colors!

The rotary book-press, recently placed on the market, marks another great advance in press making. On it, 10,000 copies of an ordinary 320-page book, without illustrations, can be printed and folded in just two working days—a feat that will take the ordinary two-revolution press fully seven times as long to accomplish.

Then, as evidence that the manufacture of paper has kept pace with the progress in other branches, what shall be said of a single paper-making machine that can turn out in a day enough paper to print 250,000 ordinary eight-page newspapers; or sufficient of a better quality of paper to print 50,000 books of 320 pages—this in a single day—the news machine making a sheet 150 inches wide, and speeding 500 feet per minute, the book machine making a sheet 130 inches wide, at the rate of 225 feet per minute.

Another very interesting branch is that of the type-setting machine—a machine that is among the most wonderful creations of this wonder-working age. We hear of plans for setting type by machinery as long ago as 1820, but the first to enter actual competition with the hand compositor was that invented by William H. Mitchell in 1853. Then follows a long list of inventors—seventeen in number—both in this country and in Europe. All of their creations fall into three classes, however. First are the type-setting machines that use the product of the foundry, setting the type automatically. Of these are the Alden, the Green-Burr, (now the Empire,) Thorne,(now the Unitype and Simplex,) Paige, McMillan, and Dow. The second class are those known as bar machines, of which class may be mentioned the Mergenthaler, Composite Bar, and Rogers. Then there is the third class—such as the Goodson, Lanston, Kastenbein, and Johnson, which cast, set and justify individual type. Of all these seventeen different machines but two have been financially successful.

Comparing the speed of the type-setting machine with that of the hand compositor, we know that the latter can set and distribute from 6000 to 8000 ems per day, while the machine will produce from 30,000 to 50,000 ems per day. A high speed of 8500 ems for one hour has been claimed, and with probability, for the Mergenthaler in a Western office, and other high speeds have been recorded for the Empire and Thorne machines. Day in and day out, however, the type-setting machine is the equal of five or six hand compositors. We should bear in mind that machine-composition is still in its infancy, yet the day cannot be far distant when the hand compositor on reading matter will be as hard to find as was the type-setting machine itself fifty years ago.

REVOLUTION IN NEWSPAPER-MAKING.

A NEW machine for casting stereotype plates has just been introduced which promises to create as great a revolution in its department of newspaper-making as the invention of the rotary press and typesetting machines did in their field. The machine, which is called the "Autoplate," modernizes a department which has hitherto been dependent wholly upon hand labor, and which, as a consequence, has been the weak link in the chain of the machinery that produces the modern newspaper.

Briefly described, the "Autoplate" consists of a casting mechanism and a series of finishing mechanisms which co-operate in one machine. A matrix is placed in the casting mechanism, the operator moves a lever and the machine proceeds to cast as many plates as required, which pass on automatically to the finishing devices. Once in place a matrix requires no manual attention until its quota of plates is finished, when it may be replaced in an instant with another. The machine is capable of making four plates a minute. According to The Fourth Estate, "a matrix comes down from the moulding-room, is thrust into the machine, and dressed plates are seen emerging from the other end before one has realized that the thing is under way."

Two special advantages over the hand method are claimed: saving of time and superiority of product. Time is saved because the forms may be held open longer than has hitherto been possible, and because the increased rapidity of work in the stereotyping room enables the press work to go right along with little or no delay in waiting for plates; while gentleness and precision of operation, it is said, enable the machine to produce a better grade of work, especially in half-tones, than can possibly be done by hand.

Three of these machines have been installed by the New York Herald, which has abandoned the hand method entirely. The inventor is Henry A. W. Wood, President of the Campbell Printing Press and Manufacturing Co., which makes the machines.

INFECTION CARRIED BY BOOKS.

According to a contributor to the New York Sun, "Experiments have shown that the bacillus of cholera will live in books 48 hours or more, that of diphtheria 28 days, that of tuberculosis 103 days. Hence it is essential to disinfect books under some circumstances. The disinfection can best be done by an exposure to steam, under pressure, for forty minutes. No damage is done to the pages. Pasteboard and linen bindings recover their shape after pressing. Formic aldehyde and sulphur vapor are less satisfactory than steam."

BOOKTRADE ASSOCIATIONS.

EAST MIDDLESEX NEWSDEALERS' ASSOCIATION.

At the annual meeting of the East Middlesex Newsdealers' Association, held in the last week of January at the Quincy House, Boston, the following officers were elected: N. E. Wilber, of West Medford, president; Arthur W. Rice, of Stoneham, vice-president; and A. W. Rooney, of Winchester, secretary and treasurer.

BOSTON STATIONERS' ASSOCIATION.

The Boston Stationers' Association held its annual meeting on January 29, at Young's Hotel, Vice-President George E. Damon in the chair. After dinner and the transaction of routine business the following officers were elected to serve during the present year: President, Samuel Ward; first vice-president, Carleton Keyes; second vice-president, C. B. Gordon; secretary, George E. Damon; treasurer, H. S. Foster. Executive committee: Samuel Hobbs, W. F. Cushing, W. B. Clarke, H. E. Davidson and Edwin W. Gay. Membership committee: Harper W. Poulson, C. B. Gordon and A. L. Delesdernier. Arbitration committee: George E. Adams, W. F. Gaylord and Charles K. Wadham. Transportation committee: Charles E. Adams, W. B. Clarke and F. W. Bailey.

THE INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS OF PUBLISHERS.

The Permanent Office of the International Congress of Publishers announces that the publishers' associations of France, Germany, including Austria and Switzerland, Great Britain, Holland and the United States have paid their share of the cost of maintaining the Permanent Office at Berne for the ensuing year and have pledged themselves to continue their support for three years.

The Permanent Office will shortly send out a memorial to be addressed to the postal departments of the different countries, with a view of effecting certain needed reforms.

The Permanent Office is also preparing to press the carrying out of the resolutions relating to the maintaining of the published price of books, and the resolutions concerning the music trade.

The memorial relating to the postal reforms should be determined upon at once, as it is desirable to have it brought up for consideration at the Congress of the Postal Union to be held at Rome. The question whether the other communications should be sent out before the proceedings of the Leipzig Congress are published is under consideration.

OBITUARY NOTES.

The Marquis of Dufferin and Ava, former Governor-General of Canada, died on the 12th inst. at his home, Clandeboye, County Down, Ireland. Lord Dufferin was born in 1826, and succeeded to his father's title, Baron of Dufferin and Clandeboye, in 1841. He became an earl in 1871, and in 1883 was promoted to the Marquisate. Lord Dufferin's literary works include "Narrative of a Journey from Oxford to Skibereen During the Year of the Irish Famine," (1848;) "Letters from High Latitudes," (1860;) "Contributions to an Inquiry into the State of Ireland," (1866;) "Irish Emigration and the Tenure of Land in Ireland," (1867,) and "Mr. Mill's Plan for the Pacification of Ireland Examined," (1868.) A collection of Lord Dufferin's "Speeches and Addresses" was published in 1882, and a "History of the Administration of the Earl of Dufferin in Canada" in 1878.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

Dr. Jusserand hopes to complete this season his "Literary History of the English People." The legation at Copenhagen gives him more leisure for literature than the French Foreign Office in Paris did.

In a desperate fight with a gigantic rattlesnake in a curiosity shop in Phœnix, Arizona, on the 11th inst., G. Wharton James, famous a a Western author and scientist, was fatally bitten. Mr. James has written several books on the Grand Cañon of Arizona, and upon basket making among Indian tribes, in addition to being a valued contributor to museums.

Mr. Nathan Haskell Dole is engaged in revising and enlarging the bibliography of Omar Khayyam for a new edition of his Multovariorum edition of the "Rubaiyat," which will be brought out in the spring by L. C. Page & Co., of Boston. Mr. Dole, whose address is Jamaica Plain, Mass., will be grateful for any information regarding new material for this work, such as new editions in English and foreign languages, magazine articles, parodies, and the like.

PERSONAL NOTES.

J. W. Corrigan, of McClure, Phillips & Co., has gone to London for a few weeks in the interest of his firm.

Thodore A. Jasper, for a number of years with Harper & Brothers, has joined the staff of A. L. Burt. He takes the late Mr. Small's route as traveller for the house, covering Canada and the West.

George P. Brett, president of The Macmillan Company, sailed for Europe on the 8th inst. He travelled in the company of F. Marion Crawford, with whom he will visit Sorrento, after which he will go to London.

The Typothetæ of the City of New York, on the 11th inst., presented to William Green, the well-known printer at 324-328 Pearl Street, New York, in recognition of his many and valuable services to the Typothetæ as the chairman of its Executive Committee, a handsome service of cut glass in an appropriate cabinet. Theodore L. De Vinne made the presentation speech, to which Mr. Green responded in a few happily-chosen words. Other members of the Typothetæ spoke and two poems dedicated to Mr. Green were read. Refreshments were served at Heumann's, at the corner of Broadway and Duane Street. From a personal acquaintance with Mr. Green that extends over a quarter of a century we can subscribe to one stanza in one of the poems dedicated to him, namely,

"For Green's not 'green' in any way,
No more than he is yellow,
True blue's his color, I should say," etc.

Generous and just as an employer, loyal as a friend, rain or shine, he is, besides, "all wool and a yard wide." A. G.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Book World, Siegel-Cooper Company's house organ, has suspended publication.

The Penn Publishing Company, Philadelphia, will publish at once Young Folks' Magazine, a new monthly periodical for boys and girls. The magazine will be edited by Herbert Leonard Coggins, and will have as contributors the leading American writers for young people. Each number will be fully illustrated, and will contain attractions for all of its young and very youngest patrons. The magazine will appeal directly to the young people rather than to their elders.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

H. W. Bryant, bookseller, Portland, Me., has issued a check list of "Maine Town Histories" for the use of collectors and librarians, containing about 160 histories. It is well printed in good clear type, and gives name of town, county, author, imprint, date, and number of pages.

Catalogues of New and Second-Hand Books.—Frank W. Coburn, Lexington, Mass., Miscellaneous. (No. 7, 203 titles.)—W. O. Davie & Co., 224 E. 4th St., Cincinnati, O., Historical books. Y., Miscellaneous. (45 titles;) also, a list of Roycroft books.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Boston, Mass.—Isaac Hull Platt, Laurens Maynard, Bliss Carman and John Miley, the Board of Directors of Small, Maynard & Co., on the 10th inst. issued a circular announcing "that by reason of business losses the company has been obliged to execute an assignment for the benefit of its creditors, in the usual Massachusetts form, to Norman H. White, treasurer of the Boston Bookbinding Company, one of the largest creditors. Before taking this action the Board of Directors has given the matter careful consideration, and only reached their conclusion by the conviction that in no other way could the assets be preserved ratably for all the creditors." They are confident that the business can be saved for the creditors and a reorganization effected. According to the assignee no statement of assets and liabilities can be made as yet.

Chicago, Ill.—Koelling & Klappenbach's quarters, at 100 and 102 Randolph Street, are undergoing improvements that will give them a building with a forty foot front and a depth of ninety feet, and eight stories. The first and second stories will be occupied by the bookstore and counting room, and the succeeding four stories by bindery, printing office and light manufacturing. The two upper stories will be fitted up as public halls. The new structure will be equipped with two passenger and one freight elevators, and with the usual modern improvements contributing to comfort and convenience.

Cincinnati, O.—W. O. Davie & Co.'s bookstore, at 224 East Fourth Street, one of the landmarks of Cincinnati, was gutted by fire and water on January 27. The building, a three-story brick, was filled with books and magazines from the basement to the roof. Mr. Davie, we understand, will not re-establish the business in which he has been engaged since 1873, succeeding S. G. Hubbard & Co., who established the business in 1841.

Lisbon, O.—D. B. Douthett, who on January 2 bought C. C. Helman's book business, has sold out to Bert Burns.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Harry G. Campbell, bookseller, has failed. No meeting of the creditors has been held, so it is impossible to say what can or will be done. Some of the large creditors are likely to advocate a continuation of the business to prevent a sacrifice sale.

New York City.—On account of the confusion that has hitherto resulted from the fact that the president of the F. M. Lupton Publishing Company carries on also another publishing business in his own name, the board of directors of the F. M. Lupton Publishing Company has changed its corporate name to that of The Federal Book Company. There will be no change in the board of directors of the company or its officers, who are as follows: F. M. Lupton, president; S. H. Moore, vice-president; George R. Sutherland, treasurer; A. B. Beers, secretary. J. M. Ruston will continue as manager of the company. In addition to continuing the publishing of the well-known lines of its predecessor, The Federal Book Company will also manufacture a higher class of books than heretofore. In all other respects the change is one of name only.

NEW YORK CITY.—Joseph M. Williams, attorney-at-law, 203 Broadway, is winding up the affairs of M. F. Mansfield. Mr. Williams expects to realize about forty cents on the dollar. He proposes within three months to pay a dividend as large as possible, and within six months to distribute the balance of the assets.

SPENCER, MASS.—B. Eugene Browning has succeeded A. Grinnell & Co., booksellers, in Kent's Block.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—The McMillan Book Company, of Ilion, N. Y., has removed to this city.

TRINIDAD, COLO.—F. D. Goodale has bought the book business of William Littlefield & Co.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

FREDERICK WARNE & Co. will shortly publish "Gripped," a new romantic story by Silas K. Hocking.

E. & J. B. YOUNG & Co. have just published "A Companion to the Prayer Book," by the Rt. Rev. A. C. A. Hall, Bishop of Vermont.

THE ABBEY PRESS has in preparation "A Tour in Mexico," by Mrs. James Edwin Morris; also, "A Soldier's Honor, with Reminiscences of Major-Gen. Earl Van Dorn," by his comrades.

W. E. HENRY, librarian of the Indiana State Library, is about to publish in book form a compilation entitled "Political Platforms of the Two Dominant Parties of Indiana, 1850-1900." The edition is to be small and privately printed.

REV. CHARLES SCADDING, rector of Emmanuel Church at Lagrange, Ill., has published a book entitled "Direct Answers to Plain Questions," that deals extensively with the questions of ritual and other matters which are engaging the attention of the Episcopal church.

MRS. CAROLINE H. ROYCE'S "Bessboro" will be printed by The Post and Gazette office at Elizabethtown, Essex County, N. Y., entirely under Mrs. Royce's supervision, and not under that of Mr. Henry Harmon Noble of Albany, N. Y., as announced in our issue for February 1.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. announce a new war book entitled "Tommy Cornstalk," which treats of the experiences in South Africa of an Australian soldier, and presents phases of the war from the point of view of the Colonial "Tommy Atkins." The author is J. H. Abbott, a colonial cavalryman.

JOHN LANE will publish shortly the second volume of "Florilegium Latinum," celebrated passages, mostly from English poets, translated into Latin, edited by the Rev. F. St. John Thackeray and the Rev. E. D. Stone; also, "India's Love Lyrics," collected and arranged by Laurence Hope.

CHARLES B. WHITTELSEY, Hartford, Conn., has compiled and will publish by subscription "The Roosevelt Genealogy—1649-1902." This work contains dates of births, marriages, and deaths of the Roosevelt families, descendent from Claas Martenzen van Roosevelt, of New Amsterdam, 1649, both in male and female lines.

THOMAS WHITTAKER has nearly ready a volume entitled "Psychic Research and Gospel Miracles," by Thomas G. Allen, M.D., and the Rev. Edward M. Duff, who undertake "scientifically to demonstrate the existence of Christ as an authentic historical character irrespective of gospel records, miracles and other phenomena, being explained and proven by facts established by the Psychical Research Society."

L. C. PAGE & Co. will publish at an early date "The Best of Balzac," edited by Alexander Jessup. The volume will contain the seven best selections from Balzac's works—"Adieu," "La Grande Bretêche," "The Duel," "Master Cornelius," "Love and the Chasm," "The Meeting in the Convent," and "A Passion in the Desert," together with a complete list of his writings, more than 140 in number, with both the English and French titles, and an introduction about the "best" of Balzac by Mr. Jessup.

DODD, MEAD & Co. have in preparation a volume of literary and social essays by the late Charles Dudley Warner, to be entitled "Fashions in Literature." These essays have been gathered together since Mr. Warner's death, some being reprinted from magazines in which they first appeared. They are said to be short essays that "demonstrate the possibility of putting life into subjects usually treated with funereal gravity." Sir Walter Besant's "Autobiography" is soon to be published in this country by Dodd, Mead & Co.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. will publish on the 21st inst. "The Leopard's Spots," a romance of the white man's burdens in the South, by Thomas Dixon, Jr. They will publish next month "Among the Water Fowl," by Herman K. Job, who has studied wild birds at sea, in the North, and in the swamps of Dakota. His photographs are said to be very interesting. They will publish in May a volume of literary essays by Francis W. Halsey, editor of the New York Times Saturday Review, to be entitled "Our Literary Deluge and Some of Its Deeper Waters."

THE GRIFFITH, AXTELL & CADY COMPANY, Holyoke, Mass., have issued two booklets to advertise their business as printers and embossers, that are about as perfect as it is possible to turn anything out of a printing shop. In producing the work shown in these samples, entitled "About a Good Print Shop" and "Bouquets," this firm have employed only the things at the command and within the means of every printer—but they employ them as only few printers know how. We commend these samples for study to the average practical printer as well as to those who want such work done.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have just published, for private circulation only, a handsome pamphlet entitled "Maryland as a Palatinate," by Miss Constance Lippincott, daughter of Mr. Craig Lippincott. The essay is said to be a useful handbook and reference book for those interested in the early history of Maryland. Miss Bertha Lippincott, the daughter of the head of the house, is at work on a novel having Philadelphia as the locale of much of the action. The little romance of West Point, "Chevrons," issued by the Lippincotts last fall over the initials "B. L.," was the work of Miss Lippincott.

LITTLE, BROWN & COMPANY will publish the following fiction this spring: "The Heroine of the Strait, or a romance of Detroit in the time of Pontiac," by Mary Catherine Crowley, author of "A Daughter of New France," with illustrations by C. Grunwald; "The God of Things," by Florence Brooks Whitehouse, a modern society novel, with illustrations by the author; "The Eagle's Talon, a romance of the Louisiana Purchase," by Sheppard Stevens, author of "I Am the King," etc., with illustrations by A. Russell; also, "In the Country God Forgot," a stirring tale of the Southwest, by Frances Charles.

C. M. CLARK PUBLISHING CO. report very heavy advance orders for "Hester Blair," which will be brought out on the 28th of this month. From all accounts Hester is a remarkable sort of a girl, and her love story and subsequent married life is one of the strangest and sweetest in modern fiction. A striking illustration from "Hester Blair" is being used in unique poster effects to announce that novel. It shows a young girl sitting in an old-fashioned high box pew of a country church, unlighted, at night. She is leaning far out in the aisle, and looking through the open door into the vestry, is an unsuspected and an unintentional witness of Hester's secret marriage.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS publish this week "The Scotch-Irish: the Scot in North Britain, North Ireland and North America," by Charles A. Hanna; "Mediæval Rome: 1073-1535," by William Miller, a new volume in the Stories of the Nations Series; "The Social Evil," the report of the New York Committee of Fifteen, referred to in a recent issue; also, "Eve Triumphant," by Pierre de Coulevain. They will publish on February 22 "A Book of Secrets," with studies in the art of self-control, by Horatio W. Dresser; "Edward Plantagenet—Edward I., the English Justinian," by Edward Jenks, in the Heroes of the Nations Series; also, "Patricia of the Hills," a novel of Irish life by Charles K. Burrow.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY have published this week Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's new story, "The Methods of Lady Walderhurst," illustrated by C. D. Williams; "Wolfville Days," another collection of western stories, by Alfred Henry Lewis, author of "Wolfville," "Sandburrs," etc., with a frontispiece by Frederic Remington; and "The Giant's Gate," a story of a great adventure, by Max Pemberton, with illustrations by H. Piffard. They will publish shortly a story of New York life entitled "The Minority," by Frederick Trevor Hill, a practicing lawyer in New York, whose first book, a collection of clever stories of the law courts of New York, called "The Case and Exceptions," was published a year or two ago.

THOMAS Y. CROWELL & CO. will publish this month the following three novels: "Frédérique," by Marcel Prevost, translated by Ellen Marriage, a story of French life and character, dealing with woman from the "bachelor" side; "Lepidus, the Centurion, a Roman of To-day," by Edwin Lester Arnold, described as "an unreal story of to-day made real by a vivid imagination and keen sense of humor;" also, "The Silent Pioneer," by Lucy Cleaver McElroy, a posthumous story by the author of "Juletty," dealing with the Kentucky wilderness, in which Daniel Boone is a leading figure. Besides these they will publish "The Hand of God in American History," by Robert Ellis Thompson, president of the Philadelphia Central High School, who demonstrates how "Providence has intervened in the affairs of our nation;" "Irrigation," by Frederick Haynes Newell, chief hydrographer of the U. S. Geological Survey, a timely and authoritative work on the reclamation of our vacant public lands; "Verba Crucis," by the Rev. T. Calvin McClelland, "meditations upon the seven last utterances of Christ, the mortal, as he hung upon the cross;" also, "The Story of Pemaquid," by James Otis, which forms the second volume of the series of Pioneer Towns of America, and gives the inner history of a very important early settlement of Maine.

THE BAKER & TAYLOR CO. announce a work of importance for women in their "Parliamentary Usage for Women's Clubs," by Mrs. Emma A. Fox, recording secretary of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and the holder of many other important offices in women's organizations. In the course of her career as a leader of women's organizations Mrs. Fox has become deeply impressed with the need of a manual especially adapted for the club woman's use, and in response to many urgent appeals she undertook the supervision of the department of parliamentary law in the Club Woman, which is the official organ of the General Federation. These papers are the basis of the present work. The book will be printed and bound in a neat and attractive style. It will be published early in March. Dr. Josiah Strong, whose writings have been very popular in the last twenty years, is about to publish through the Baker & Taylor Co. a volume of exceptional interest. It is entitled "The Next Great Awakening." Dr. Strong works on the theme that there were great religious awakenings in the sixteenth, seventeenth, eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. He believes that a revival will come in this century, but that it will be of a different nature. He points out that the revivals of the past have been incited by the preaching of certain neglected Scriptural truths, and he devotes a part of his book to a summing up of those truths which he believes it necessary for the ministry of to-day to preach in order to bring about another religious awakening.

MOST important of all early exploration of the Western States was the Lewis and Clark Expedition of 1804-1806. This was the first scientific expedition across the continent. The explorers followed the course of the Missouri to its source and then descended the Columbia, returning by the same general route. Extracts from their journals were published in various forms, as official documents and as more popular compilations, the most important contemporary work being the two volumes published in Philadelphia in 1814. This, which has always been considered the best edition of the Lewis and Clark travels, was, according to the title-page, "prepared for the press by Paul Allen," though it is known that the book was prepared under the direction of Nicholas Biddle. As a matter of fact, however, these volumes do not contain the journals themselves, but only a much garbled and condensed version. The complete journals have never been printed. The manuscript of these journals is still in existence, belonging to the American Philosophical Society of Philadelphia. In view of the centennial of the "Louisiana Purchase" (by which the United States came into possession of the great valley of the Missouri), which is to be commemorated by the St. Louis Exposition, in 1904, and the Oregon Centennial of the Lewis and Clark Expedition, to be celebrated in 1905, Dodd, Mead & Company have made arrangements with the society which owns the journals for their publication for the first time, exactly word for word as written. This new and authoritative edition is to be edited by Reuben Gold Thwaites, of the Wisconsin Historical Society, most competent of living men for the work, by reason of his long and careful study of everything relating to the early settlement of the West.

McClure, Phillips & Co will publish shortly Dr. A. Conan Doyle's new Boer War book, "The War in South Africa: its cause and conduct." This, as already noted by us, is a labor of love on Dr. Doyle's part, written to refute the allegations, widespread in the Continental press, of barbarities practised by the British army. He has foregone all royalties and arranged for the book's publication at a price (ten cents) barely covering the cost of making. Copies are to be widely distributed to national and state officials and to libraries. Dr. Doyle has tried in vain to find a publisher in Germany for this book, public opinion there being so strongly anti-British that no publishing house thus far has offered to print the British view of the question. Two books for which widespread popularity on broadly divergent lines is expected will be published this spring by McClure, Phillips & Co. One is Dr. A. Conan Doyle's new novel, "The Hound of the Baskervilles," the other Marconi's autobiographic "Wireless Telegraphy." "The Hound of the Baskervilles" is derived from an old Devonshire legend of a demoniac hound that haunts the great moors. About this hound Dr. Doyle has built a murder mystery, to the solution of which he summons that most popular of modern fictional personages, Sherlock Holmes. The legend on which the story is based was told to Dr. Doyle by his friend, Mr. Fletcher Robinson, to whom the book is dedicated. The Marconi book, though on a subject that is in a sense technical, is written in popular style, and the world-wide interest in wireless telegraphy will undoubtedly mean a great demand for a book on this subject by the recognized master in that field of science. Mr. Marconi has been working on the book for two years, and has included in it not only all his own experiments and those of his forerunners, but also a look into the future of the science. There is a special autobiographic appendix.

The Macmillan Company have just published "The Story of the Mormons," by William Alexander Linn, once managing editor of the New York Evening Post, which tells the story of the Mormons from the inception of the idea of a new Bible and sect to the present day. The author rests his narrative largely on Mormon authority—the publications of the Mormons themselves in their earlier days both east and west of the Mississippi, which later church authorities have tried to suppress. They have also just ready "The Mastery of the Pacific," by A. R. Colquhoun, which gives an account of political and material development in the far East, with an estimate of the present status of Russia, Germany, France, Great Britain and Japan, with a number of illustrations from photographs; "The English Chronicle Play: a Study in the Popular Historical Literature Environing Shakespeare," by Prof. Felix E. Schelling, of the University of Pennsylvania, who treats of the "chronicle play" in its origins, in its relations to the wealth of historical literature in other forms which flourished around it, and in its growth and decline; also, "The Theory of Prosperity," by Prof. Simon N. Patten, a work which recognizes the reciprocal importance of economic and biological thought. They have in preparation "Lessons from Greek Pottery," by Prof. John H. Huddilstone, who suggests the most important questions in the study of Hellenic antiquity for which the vase-paintings are valuable aid, and informs the reader where these as well as other matter pertaining to the bibliography may be found; "A Primer of the Christian Religion," by George Holley Gilbert, formerly of Chicago University, an attempt to "define the content of Christianity from the standpoint of Jesus;" also, "Mrs. Seely's Cook Book," which, according to its subtitle, is to be "A Manual of French and American Cookery, with Chapters on Domestic Servants, their Rights and Duties, and Many Other Details of Household Management." Owen Wister's new book is to be called "The Virginian—a horseman of the Plains," and will be published early in April.

AUDREY

By MARY JOHNSTON

Author of "To Have and To Hold"

THE widespread interest aroused by the preliminary announcement of Miss Johnston's New Romance "Audrey" is evidenced by the large advance orders received by the Publishers from every section of the country. These are already greatly in excess of those received for "To Have and To Hold" which instantly, upon publication, became the best selling book and the one most universally in demand at all libraries.

It is handsomely illustrated with six colored pictures by F. C. YOHN and is bound in an attractive style.

MISS JOHNSTON'S OTHER BOOKS ARE

TO HAVE AND TO HOLD. 300th Thousand
PRISONERS OF HOPE. 87th Thousand

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO.

Messrs.
A. C. McClurg & Co.

are pleased to announce for publication in March

A Most Important Work of Fiction

By a new Author

THE story is so remarkable a one, and will be produced in so beautiful a form, that the publishers confidently predict for it an immediate and unqualified success.

The story has a purpose.
The story has a real hero.
The story has a heroine worthy the hero.
The story has action.
The story has color.
The story has an heroic period for its setting.
The story has a vivid atmosphere.
The story has characters that live and breathe.
The story has the deepest sincerity.
The story has genuine "heart interest."
The story has the spirit of adventure.

And finally,
the story has the deepest historical interest for every American.

The Thrall of Leif the Lucky

A Story of Viking Days
By Ottilie A. Liljencrantz

THE volume will be richly illustrated in colors from original paintings by Troy & Margaret Kinney, who have also prepared a striking title-page, quaint end-leaf designs and curious initial letters.

The first large edition will be ready March 10

H. WOLFF

N. Y. OF AMERICA N. Y.

TWO weeks ago we had something to say about The House With the Green Shutters, an extraordinary novel of Scotch life by a young and unknown Scot, GEORGE DOUGLAS. We announced in The Publishers' Weekly the beginning of the book's somewhat deferred, but confidently expected recognition as a notable work. We have now to record a continuance and increase of this recognition. The second edition of the book was larger than the first but not large enough ; it was quickly exhausted by the rush of orders. We made all possible haste with a third : that also is going swiftly. Orders are coming in daily from the four points of the compass, not to mention the intermediate directions, for lots of ten, twenty, fifty, one hundred, two hundred, five hundred copies. The House With the Green Shutters is a Success.

P. S.—Several orders for copies of the first edition, offering a premium, have reached us. We have been unable to supply them. This edition will soon be on the dealers' catalogues among other rare and expensive books.

CAPTAIN JINKS, HERO

By ERNEST CROSBY

A satirical novel upon the military history of the United States since the outbreak of the Spanish war.

With Twenty-five Irresistible Drawings by DAN BEARD

Every phase of militarism satirized with keenest wit. Hazing at "East Point" exposed with biting sarcasm. The savagery of war mercilessly laid bare. Osculatory attacks upon the hero of brass buttons described with rare humor. Brimful of fun, sarcasm and clever hits.

12mo, cloth, ornamental cover, $1.50

Hester Blair

By WILLIAM HENRY CARSON

Attractively Bound in Red Silk Cloth, Gold Stamped, Six Full-Page Illustrations by C. H. Stephens. Price, $1.50

HERE IS A Book You Will Hear About, Read, Think About, Talk About, and SELL

Do not be afraid to place liberal orders for this title. It's going to be one of the SIX BEST SELLERS at the first jump, just as Quincy Adams Sawyer and Blennerhassett were Hester is a pure and lovable character, though a puzzling one.

For instance:

"I know, Ralph, dear; but such a train of misfortunes followed our marriage; the death of your young friend, the curate, who performed the ceremony; the destruction of the parsonage and the church records by fire; the disappearance of the only witnesses; the loss of our marriage certificate. . . . They believe me earning my living teaching music." HESTER BLAIR.
